Was the apt subject of a toast offered by Chas. B. Leaman, and heartily re-sponded to by John S. Gable, president of the Friendship. He was most deeply gratified with the present celebration, and had always taken an active interest in the Union, the oldest of our local companies, always active and forcible. Fifty-three years ago he had come to Lancaster, and FOUR GENERATIONS OF MEMBERS.

He vividly recalled the old lines of men and women passing the full and empty buckets at a fire, emptying one well and finding another; the buckets hauging in the halls ; the baskets and ladders. Barr, esq., formerly of the Union, now president of the American. He briefly alluded to the advances in every day science as exemplified by the telephone and of the changes since he first joined the Union, in 1857. The Union deserved great credit for its activity as an or-ganization in raising the first company thus secured here for the defence of the Union. He briefly sketched the career of of that company finally becoming the nuing occupied by President Slaymaker, the cleus of Company B. 1st P. V. The applause which followed his speech called out Capt. Stauffer, who eulogized the "Guards" and the patriotic sentiment which inspired volunteer soldiers and volunteer firemen. Letters of Regret. Letters were then read from Alfred Sanderson, of the Shippensburg Chronicle, the historian of the company; Chas M. Howell, president, of the Empire hook and ladder company, and from S. R. Evarts, of Harrisburg, a former member of the Union, expressing their regrets at being unable to recent invitations to be a present. unable to accept invitations to be present and indulging in pleasant memories of and allusions to the company and its splendid Itself found a spokesman in H. E. whole city had such satisfaction. The sentiment Mr. Slaymaker responded to was from Maj. Howell's letter as follows: "The Union S. F. E. and F. H. Co., No. 1, of Lancaster—a bright star in the Lancaster Fire Department; may every advancing step of time add fresh laurels to their renown, and their usefulness in the future, as in the past, be bright and glorious." More bongs.

After Rotharmel sang "The Green Cart," he sang by request "The Union and their President," both specially applicable to the occasion and received with shouts of applause. At E. E. Snyder's suggestion the company toasted the invited guests who could not be present and at 11:40 in the best of good order the assemblage adjourned.

The timely points of all the speakers were heartily applauded; the exercises were in good taste throughout, and taken all in all the celebration was such an event as may be added in the most worthy setting to the history which this most excellent company has made for itself with four generations of Lancaster's citizens.

The committee in charge of the supper was J. L. Lyte, G. Edw. Hegener and Albert Clinton. BISHOP VAIL. Two Interesting Services, The announcement that Bishop Vail, of Kansas, son-in-law of the late Bishop Bowman, of this city, would preach in St.

John's P. E. church yesterday morning and evening, drew a large audience on both occasions, while Prof. Diller's handling of the organ contributed largely to the interest of the services. There being no services.

Prof. Matz and his chorister boys conducted the singing and in the audience a number of the local clergy were notable, including Rev. Dr. E. V. Gerhart, president of the Reformed theological semnary, Prof. John S. Stahr, of the college. Bishop Vail is a man over sixty years of age, with a venerable and patriarchal look, most agreeable manner, and simple, unaf-

His morning sermon was based on the text: St. Matthew xx, 22, 27. "But Jesus answered and said ye know not what ye ask. Are ye able to drink of the cup that I shall drink of and to be baptized with the baptism that I am bap-tized with? They say unto him, We are able. And he saith unto them: with the baptism that I am Ye shall drink indeed of my cup and be baptized with the baptism that I am baptized with; but to sit on my right hand and on my left is not mine to give, but it shall be given to them for whom it is pre-pared of my father." In the first place of the local newspapers. The reputation of the newspapers like that of firemen depended on what they made themselves. The Union has a glorious history. Continuing in its past ways it would come here to celebrate its bi-centennial. Then its engines will move by electricity, and quicker agency than water will be applied to extinguish fires; but the principles which will animate its members will be the same as are celebrated to-night and which are as are celebrated to-night and which are that God works well for them who do

ITS ANCIENT AND HONORABLE HISTORY ONE HUNDRED AND TWENTIETH AN-NIVERSARY.

president of the company, occupied the other end of the table, and some fifty members of the company sat down. The appearance of the table was beautiful and inviting. The best arrangement had been made of rich bouquets and pyramids of flowers; the historical banners of the Union were ranged around the walls. and on either side of the room was the bold inscription "1760-Union-1880." Broiled chicken and baked potatoes, cold meats and a variety of salads, the dishes tastefully, garnished; fruits, ice-cream, coffee, biscuit, sherry and champagne wines made up the bill of fare, and after a brief address of welcome to the guests by H. E. Slaymaker, ample justice was done to it. At 101 p. m. President Slaymaker called the assemblage to order and offered the first toast of the evening, "The Memory of the Founders of the

"Our Gueste," proposed by John B. Markley, was represent, and especially to members of the press a hearty welcome. " The City of Lancaster," the prosperity of which was toasted by J. R. Waters, was answered for by its chief executive, Mayor John T. MacGonigle, who congratulated the Union on its splendid record as a social organization and an agency of public usefulness. Its history of 120 years was one in which its members might take an honorable pride. Its members and officers had reflected credit on themselves, their city and the fire department, and of its later history, as chief executive officer of the city, he was glad to bear testimony to its exemplary character for order. Not only as an or-ganization does it yield prompt obedience to municipal regulations, but individually its members by example and precept said in the preservation of good government. "The Lancaster Fire Department" proposed by G. Byron Cummings was spoken for by Walter M. Franklin, Esq., the newly elect president of the Humane and chairman of the committee of councils on fire engines and hose. He had found the Union ever ready to lend its aid in time of need. Reviewing its history and in presence of this occasion he feit like saying "Hurrah for the Union." He himself had an interest in it because his father and grandfather had been members of it, while the company which he represented, he was glad to know, had branched off from such good stock. In respect to the fire department of the city it was one which the people had reason to be proud of; its self-denying heroism, its efficiency, its social position and its equipment were deserving of the highest commendation, and to this, one of its best representatives, he could only say "the Union Forever."

"The Press" offered by G. Edw. Hegener, esq., was responded to by W. U. Hensel, esq., who found a certain sort of association between the local press and the volunteer fire department, since both had been in a measure superseded in the larger communities, while both continued vigorous here, improving in their respective spheres. He fected style of preaching. was glad to see the continuance of a local press to represent every interest of the community, and glad that he volunteer fire department still existed and furnished occasion for the display of heroic selfdenial and unpaid patriotism. There was an interdependence between the press and the firemen. The newspapers depended on them for many a live item, and the press in turn chronicled the brave deeds of the firemen. In compiling that admirable history of the "Union" the journalist historian had depended largely on the records of the local newspapers. The reputation of the newspapers like that of firemen de-pended on what they made themselves.
